Learning in and through heritage

5 September 2019, 10:00-17:00, BADGES final conference, Landcommanderij Alden Biesen (BE)

Heritage makes us wiser! By visiting cultural or natural heritage, you learn about that culture or nature. You can also develop broader competences.

How can an exhibition, monument or landscape contribute to this? How can they present themselves and turn the experience into one that motivates people to delve deeper and wants them to learn more? How can you make this personal development visible? And how can you give visitors recognition?

The EU BADGES project provides you with handy tools. It has developed a framework that can shape attractive competence-oriented learning in heritage institutions. Furthermore it has created a methodology to validate this learning.

On September 5, 2019 all BADGES partners are happy to share their pilots and vision with you in the Landcommanderij Alden Biesen (Belgium). In presentations and a fair you will discover a windmill walk in Schiedam (NL), projects raising natural heritage protection awareness in Tatra National park (PL) and Berlengas Island (PT), badging volunteers (BE), an open monuments weekend that involves 6000 volunteers in one city (IT) and much more. In the afternoon you will discover what "badging" can look like in your organization and have the unique opportunity to talk to colleagues from all over Europe.

Don't miss this interesting FREE event and register today by sending the registration form to myriam.swinnen@vlaanderen.be

And the award goes to....

Do you already have an adult learning project that you are proud of? Do you have a great idea on how to promote lifelong learning in your organization?
